DIETER ELECTED NPMA EASTERN REGION VICE PRESIDENT

James Dieter joins the NPMA Executive Board as the Eastern Region Vice President.

RENO, Nevada. August, 2008 – Sunflower Systems, the leading provider of asset management solutions and software, announces that James Dieter was elected to the National Property Management Association Executive Board as the NPMA Eastern Region Vice President. Jim Dieter is the Director of Strategic Programs for Sunflower Systems, where he works to ensure that Sunflower solutions meet current and evolving future needs of government property managers and enterprise asset management programs. Previously, Dieter was the Manager of Government Property and Transportation at Northrop Grumman IT, and was the Chair of the Northrop Grumman Property Council. Dieter has been an NPMA member for over 20 years and in 2005 was honored with the Jack E. Griffiths Memorial Award as the NPMA Property Person of the Year.

Some of Dieter's goals as Vice President include:

- Providing leadership and management skills where and when they are needed.
- Continuing the tradition of support for the Eastern Region Chapters and members.
- Finding more ways to have the best possible programs for chapter meetings and seminars.
- Promoting stable chapter finances.
- Helping "Green" the association and the profession.
- Continuing to broaden and deepen the reach of the NPMA.

Dieter expressed thanks and appreciation for the opportunity to serve the profession and the NPMA. As in his work on standards through ASTM Committee E53, he hopes to help more people become involved in defining and broadening our profession, and providing increased relevance and opportunities for all.
